

proven otherwise. According to the familiar Airway, Breathing and Circulation (ABC) mnemonic, circulation is addressed as the part of the primary survey immediately after airway and breathing. The circulation step of the primary survey includes both resuscitation and control of external bleeding.^[1] Among combat casualties, whose trauma is largely